Ce que je sais de toi

by Éric Chacour

In Cairo in the 80s, a young doctor follows the path set out for him. Between his clinic and the prestigious practice of his father, Tarek leads a life that leaves little room for asking himself questions. But a chance encounter with a person very different from him will jeopardize his marriage, his career, and even his heart and force him into exile. Éric Chacour's debut novel reveals the luminous mind and breathtaking humanity of an author who writes in sumptuous prose.

Couleur chair

by Bianca Joubert

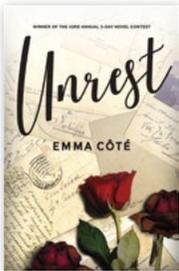

A woman from a family that has always kept quiet about its past explores the construction of identity around skin colour. This partly autobiographical, partly historical novel examines the quest for roots. Bianca Joubert explores different times in the lives of her ancestors. She takes us from the shores of the St. Lawrence River to Gorée Island, a journey that reveals great breadth and diversity and evokes a world in which the blending of cultures can be both painful and luminous.

Unrest

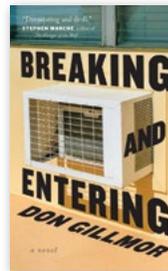

by Emma Côté

Mylène Andrews spends her days dealing with death, but has never quite figured out how to live. After her estranged mother passes away, adult-orphaned Mylène sets out in her hearse to see the graveyards her mother visited before her death, guided by a collection of unsent postcards and the residual wake of a tragedy long-considered buried. Brisk, observational, and darkly comic, Unrest is both a road trip story and a touching eulogy on life, death, and what we leave behind.

Breaking and Entering

by Don Gillmor

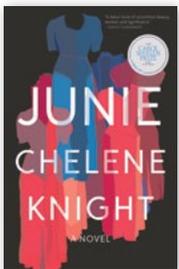

At 49, Beatrice Billings is rudderless. Her marriage is stale, her relationship with her son is strained, and her mother is in the early stages of dementia. Bea misses the momentum she remembers from her thirties, but when she discovers a talent for picking locks, the sense of anticipation that had been missing from her life returns. It's a dangerous hobby that makes her feel alive—and so she begins the guilty analysis of other people's lives, and eventually, her own.

Junie A Novel

by Chelene Knight

1930s, Hogan's Alley—a thriving Black and immigrant community located in Vancouver's East End. Junie is a creative, observant child who moves to the alley with her mother, Maddie: a jazz singer with a growing alcohol dependency. Told through the fascinating lens of a bright woman in an oft-disquieting world, this book is intimate and urgent—not just an unflinching look at the destruction of a vibrant community, but a celebration of the Black lives within.

Places Like These

by Lauren Carter

Whether in Ecuador or San Francisco, rural Ontario or northern Manitoba, the landscape in each of Lauren Carter's poignant short stories reflects each character's journey. Psychologically complex and astute, Places Like These plumbs the vast range of human reactions to those things which make us human—love, grief, friendship, betrayal, and the intertwined yet contrasting longing for connection and independence.

Fearnoch

by Jim McEwen

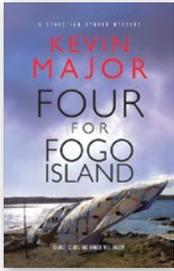

Steinbeck meets Miriam Toews in this insightful and illuminating novel about the decline of rural Canada and the meaning of community. Welcome to Fearnoch, an undistinguished farming hamlet in its twilight. The deterioration of the once fruitful way of life in this small town is explored through the lives and trajectories of its inhabitants. The novel is a plea for its characters to remember humility, honesty, and to see themselves in their neighbour, before it's all gone.

Four for Fogo Island

by Kevin Major

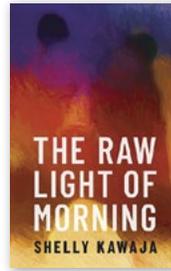

Murder in a quilt shop on scenic Fogo Island leads sardonic private eye Sebastian Synard from his quest for some R&R to a different kind of excursion altogether. When Sebastian and new romance Mae arrive at a fabric shop, they discover the owner in a back room, lying in a pool of blood, having been stabbed with a pair of antique quilting scissors. This propels the couple along a sequence of occasionally bizarre investigative paths to track down the killer.

The Raw Light of Morning

by Shelly Kawaja

Winner of the Winterset Prize

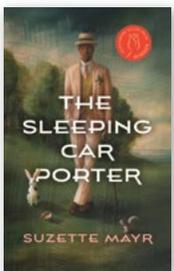

A powerful novel about women and children finding humour and love in the aftermath of poverty, domestic violence, and generational abuse. In a house at the back end of Woods Road, 14-year-old Laurel commits an act of violence that alters the course of her life. Laurel needs a fresh start, and education is her ticket out, but when her past starts to catch up with her, she must decide how far she will go to protect herself and the ones she loves.

The Sleeping Car Porter

by Suzette Mayr

WINNER OF THE GILLER PRIZE

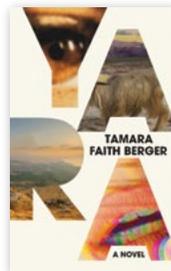

It's 1929, and Baxter, a queer Black porter, has a job on a train that crisscrosses the country. What he really wants is to go to dentistry school, but he'll have to save up a lot of tips to get there. When Baxter finds a postcard of two queer men, he keeps it, even though it puts his job in peril. Then a mudslide strands a train, and Baxter must contend with the perils of white passengers, sleep-deprivation hallucinations, and his secret love affair.

Yara
A Novel

by Tamara Faith Berger

A reverse cautionary tale about a young woman exploring the boundaries of sex and belonging in the early 2000s. Distracted that her teenage daughter is in love with an older woman, Yara's mother sends her away from Brazil on a trip to Israel. Freed from her increasingly controlling girlfriend, Yara's journey takes her from a debauchorous Israel trip to Toronto to the erotic film industry in California, all while Yara tries to forge her own path and follow her desires.

Autokrator

by Emily A. Weedon

Born nameless in a rigid society that has relegated women to non-person status—Unmales—two women fight against their invisibility.

Cera tends the rooms of the young successor to the autocracy. Cera realizes he is her son, taken from her at birth. Driven by a Machiavellian mind and ego, Tiresius has successfully hidden her Unmale status in plain sight for years. Hopeful and cautionary, Autokrator reimagines gender and power against the backdrop of a speculative world.

Le livre Uber

par Brigitte Pellerin

Tout le monde (ou presque) sait ce que c'est que de prendre un Uber. Mais bien peu de gens savent ce que l'expérience représente de l'autre côté de la transaction. Pendant plus d'un an, Brigitte Pellerin a été conductrice pour Uber. Ce qu'elle y a appris en dit long sur notre société. Ce récit étonnant aux accents personnels prend un malin plaisir à renverser les idées préconçues sur la multinationale qui a transformé l'industrie du taxi et du transport.

Rivières-aux-Cartouches

par Sébastien Bérubé

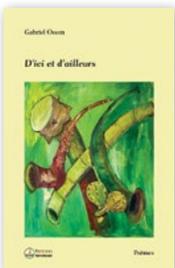

Rivières-aux-Cartouches s'est écrit comme on bâtit un village : à coups de légendes de sous-bois, de commérages de salon de coiffure, de secrets de famille, de rumeurs de cour d'école, d'aveux pis de mensonges. C'est une profusion de langues sales et de gorges enracinées de travers qui orient fort pour enterrer les autres. Mais suffit de prêter l'oreille pour se rendre compte que les voix se mélangent pour finir par n'en former qu'une seule, celle du village.

Rictus

par Eddy Garnier

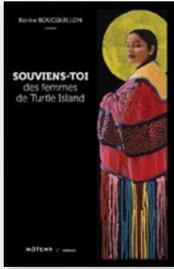

Rictus décrit un monde où les inégalités sociales demeurent, mais l'auteur dans un humour noir dresse un bilan réaliste qui touche le coeur de l'homme dans sa plus profonde expression. Eddy Garnier nous livre dans une écriture non conventionnelle, une oeuvre plutôt universelle sans direction ni balises, où tous les thèmes de la vie quotidienne se frayent mais sans se diluer. Il n'y a rien de nouveau, la vie est un soleil qui se renouvelle chaque jour avec ses pépins et ses pépites.

Toronto, je t'aime

par Didier Leclair

Raymond quitte le Bénin et arrive à Toronto, la ville reine, avec pour seul contact un ami d'enfance. Il y rencontre des « frères » de circonstance, pour qui les rapports à l'intégration et l'adaptation sont très nuancés. Toronto, je t'aime est un magnifique roman aux accents et aux couleurs diversifiés, à l'image de cette ville dont l'auteur a su, dans un style et une langue bien ficelés, en tracer les contours physiques et sociologiques.

Tales for Late Night Bonfires

by G.A. Grisenthwaite

Tales blending Indigenous oral storytelling and inimitable style from GG finalist G.A. Grisenthwaite. These are stories that are a little bit larger than life, or maybe they really happened. Tales that could be told 'round the campfire, each one-upping the next. Grisenthwaite's writing is electric and inimitable, blending meticulous literary style with oral storytelling and coming away with a voice that is entirely his own. This book is truly one of a kind, and not to be missed.

Flora en éclats par Stéphanie Parent

Flora, 20 ans, s'étourdit de dépaysements, d'art, d'amour. Lors d'un voyage, Malik lui expose la théorie des azulejos : ces carreaux de céramique qui habillent les palais d'Espagne symbolisent nos choix de vie. Assemblés en fresque, ils célèbrent la liberté, l'imprévisibilité. En mosaïque, ils évoquent une existence rationnelle, rassurante. Dix ans plus tard, Flora choisit d'appivoiser ses ambiguïtés. S'il suffisait d'aligner les azulejos pour retrouver le goût, la capacité d'aimer ?

par Daniel Grenier

La journaliste Alexandra Pearson cherche la trace de l'écrivain Ambrose Bierce disparu il y a 100 ans. Mission impossible sans le concours de son père à qui elle s'est pourtant juré de ne jamais rien demander. Car l'univers magique et glauque qui est le sien peut vous avaler. Un autre récit s'impose, celui d'une jeune femme qu'elle a accompagnée dans une odyssée américaine il y a longtemps, et abandonnée. C'est l'histoire de cette femme-là que la journaliste veut raconter.

Niagara

par Catherine Mavrikakis

Tout coule. Au pied des chutes, l'eau bouillonne et l'écume grandit. Plus loin, les fleuves impassibles n'en finissent plus d'irriguer le territoire, charriant les corps et d'innombrables histoires à travers le continent. Dans ce mouvement insaisissable, du Saint-Laurent au lac Ontario, puis du fleuve Mississippi au golfe du Mexique, l'énergique narratrice de Niagara guette la silhouette fantomatique de sa mère qui dérive, et de tous ses disparus qui l'accompagnent au fil de l'eau.

An Ordinary Violence
A Novel

by Adriana Chartrand

A chilling horror novel about a young Indigenous woman haunted by the oppressive legacies of colonization. Dawn hasn't spoken to her brother, Cody, since he was sent to prison for a violent crime. Now living in Toronto, Dawn is haunted by uncanny occurrences, including cryptic messages from her dead mother. When the life Dawn thought she wanted implodes, she is forced to return to her childhood home and the prairie city that holds so much pain for her and her fractured family.

Chrysalis

by Anuja Varghese

Genre-blending short stories of transformation and belonging. Anuja Varghese's debut collection is poignant and chilling, blurring the lines between the real world and worlds beyond. Varghese delves fearlessly into complex intersections of family, community, sexuality, and cultural expectation, taking aim at the ways in which racialized women are robbed of power and revelling in the strange and dangerous journeys they undertake to reclaim it.

A Hostage

by Charlotte Mendel

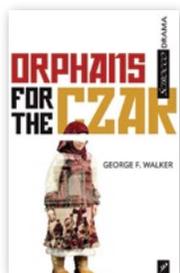

When Charlotte is kidnapped by Middle Eastern dictator Kassem, panic is only held at bay by a sardonic Inner Voice, which alternately consoles and condemns. A post-modern fable, the novel plays with truth while exploring the concept of imprisonment, the impacts of social media and challenging widely held assumptions about fame. A Hostage probes Western political naiveté along with novelistic hubris as it, often hilariously, explores the relationship of the individual to society.

Orphans for the Czar

by George F. Walker

Set shortly before Bloody Sunday in St. Petersburg, a hapless double agent tries to stay on the right side of both the revolutionaries and the czarists. The orphaned fool, Vasley, leaves his impoverished village to work in his uncle's bookstore and becomes engrossed by the women, the intelligentsia, the spies, and all their conflicting ideologies. A comedy of pathos about the fragility of people in unstable times, Orphans for the Czar is also a plea for the possibility of decency.

The War Being Waged

by Darla Contois

Three generations of Indigenous women try to connect the pieces of their lives after experiencing how Canada has torn them apart. A mother becomes an activist while her brother becomes a soldier. A grandmother speaks to her granddaughter from prison. A granddaughter struggles to accept her family's history. Monologue, poetry, and contemporary dance are woven together in this stunning unflinchingly truthful work by Winnipeg theatre artist Darla Contois.

Le jeu de la musique

by Stéfanie Clermont

A boy commits suicide in an empty lot where he often spent the day laying out in the sun and the night making fires. One August morning, he got up and hung himself from a tree. He is survived by friends. They carry on his memory and keep living, struggling and loving, confronting their new and old loves. They recount the mistakes, the friends they've lost, the fears, the handful of victories, and the blasts of revolt.

Le plongeur

by Stéphane Larue

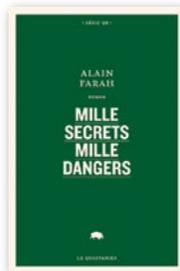

Montréal, early 2002. The narrator hasn't even turned twenty yet. He likes Clive Barker and Lovecraft, metal, comic books, and sci-fi novels from the 60s and 70s. A graphic design student, he has been drawing since as far back as he can remember. But for months he has been avoiding his friends, lying, and getting into debt. He is a gambler. Every dollar—his and the ones he borrows—goes into video lotteries. Come winter, he is tapped out and homeless.

Mille secrets mille dangers

by Alain Farah

An autobiographical novel that takes place in a single day, in which self-deprecating humour and despair are intertwined, Mille secrets mille dangers is the story of two men who grew up together in Montréal's Little Beirut neighborhood. One day in July 2007, on the narrator's wedding day, they come face to face with the legacy that was passed on to them, in which anxiety and illness, superstition and denial, as well as an obsession with money's black magic, figure prominently.

Dans la nuit arctique par Yann Fourny

Certaines campagnes d'exploration de l'Arctique lancées au début du XXe siècle ont été glorieuses, et d'autres englouties par les glaces et la nuit. L'expédition Ellesmere était de celles-ci. Yann Fourny, captivé par la magie de ce territoire, a trouvé le journal de bord d'un cartographe anglais nommé Erwin Inglefield, membre de cette mission scientifique évanouie sans laisser de traces en 1908. Le texte en est ici restitué.

L'oiseau-grenade par Anne Guilbault

Ce roman fait résonner jusqu'à nous les battements de la guerre et de l'exode. Assia s'accroche à la poésie et à une petite poupée, talisman de son enfance pour surnager dans le chaos. Son amoureux, Akram, travaille pour les Casques blancs dans Alep ravagée, s'efforçant de compter les survivants plutôt que les morts. Lili, sa mère d'origine québécoise, démantèle les albums photos et laisse derrière elle toute possession matérielle. Eshan, son jeune frère, cesse de parler, de manger, de grandir.

par Marie-Claire Blais

Augustino ou l'illumination constitue un long fragment du texte auquel Marie-Claire Blais travaillait quand elle est décédée, le 30 novembre 2021. On y retrouve le personnage d'Augustino, qu'on avait laissé dans Naissance de Rebecca à l'ère des tourments. Écrivain, il s'était retiré du monde pour vivre parmi les démunis. Il est en Inde au milieu des lépreux, atteint lui-même d'une lèpre de nature inconnue. Il se remémore le destin tragique de ses ancêtres.

The Razor's Edge presents a collection of interlinked fictions that inhabit halfway worlds between past and present, dream and actuality, science and divination. Ordinary activities lead to unexpected slides into lucid dreams and flirtations with the edge of madness. Drawing on literature, pop culture, and history, these complex, magic realist stories suggest that what seems separate is really interconnected and that the distinction between past, present, and future is illusion.

This Is How You Start to Disappear

by Astrid Blodgett

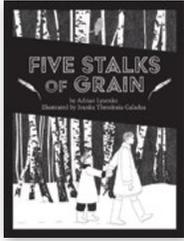

This Is How You Start to Disappear is a new collection of engaging, tension-filled stories interested in the ways we don't understand each other and how we respond to each other, especially in the midst of change and uncertainty. Focusing on relationships, especially among family and friends, Astrid Blodgett's stories explore the consequences of grief and denial and single moments that change perceptions, lives, and attachments forever.

Five Stalks of Grain

by Adrian Lysenko, illustrated by Ivanka Theodosia Galadza

In 1932, as famine rages across Ukraine, the Soviet government calls for the harshest punishment for those who keep for themselves even five stalks of grain. When their mother is accused of hoarding and summarily killed, Nadia and Taras must leave their home on a desperate quest for survival. Historical fiction at its finest, Five Stalks of Grain is a record of a time of profound suffering and a reckoning with the human cost of a tragedy shaped by politics and policy.

Flicker

by Lori Hahnel

Cass Reisender doesn't like being psychic. All it ever got her was a bad job with Madame Freyja, the worst person in the world. But Cass is starting again, better this time. And it is better, until a mysterious object rips Cass into the past, landing her in West Orange, New Jersey in the year 1900 and in the arms of Erik Thorvaldsen, dashing laboratory assistant to one Thomas Edison. Flicker is a thrilling tale of time travel, the golden age of discovery, and the power of love.

La respiration du ciel

by Mélodie Joseph

In the Torments marshes, a savage wasteland seeped in a deadly mist, Snow finds a little girl, Olive. The child doesn't know who she is, nor where she comes from, but she wasn't born in the Torments, and shouldn't have survived them. In the sky islands of the Oracles, in the orphanage where her protector has abandoned her, Olive struggles to sew her shredded memories back together. As they slowly take form, she makes unnerving discoveries about the Oracles' deeds.

Tout est ori

by Paul Serge Forest

The Lelarge family quietly lords over the seafood trade on the northern shores of the Gulf of the St. Lawrence. One day, a mysterious visitor, Mori Ishikawa, makes his arrival. Nobody knows at first that the man has made an invention that will come to change the course of history. Nobody, that is, except for Frédéric Goyette, an official from the Canadian Food Inspection Agency, and Laurie, the younger, rebellious Lelarge daughter, on whom Ishikawa exerts an irrepressible attraction...

Thick Skin
Field Notes from a Sister in the Brotherhood
by Hilary Peach

Thick Skin: Field Notes from a Sister in the Brotherhood is a deep dive into the secret language and hidden culture of one of the most esoteric heavy construction trades: boilermaking. At times edging up to the surreal, Thick Skin is a collection of strange stories carefully told, in tenderness and ferocity, for anyone who has spent time in a trade or is curious about the unseen world of industrial construction.

The Bund
A Graphic History of Jewish Labour Resistance by Sharon Rudahl, edited by Paul Buhle, illustrated by Michael Kluckner Told in an engaging graphic novel format, The Bund explains the oppressive origins of Jewish resistance in Ukraine, Poland, and the "Pale of Settlement" in Tsarist Russia. Jewish people adapted to industrialization and organized against exploitation. The first of its kind, this graphic history of Jewish labour resistance lays bare evidence of a radical past that can have massive implications for leftist Jewish struggles today.

The Mantle of Struggle
A Biography of Black Revolutionary Rosie Douglas
by Irving Andre

Rosie Douglas was a fierce civil rights activist and participated in revolutionary global solidarity movements. He led the movement for Dominica's full independence from Britain, then served as a senator in the post-independence government, an MP, party leader, and finally prime minister. Relying on family sources, interviews, newspaper articles, and Douglas's own letters and speeches, Andre has drawn a rich and riveting record of this important Black revolutionary.

All Things Move
Learning to Look in the Sistine Chapel
by Jeannie Marshall

All Things Move tells the story of Marshall's relationship with one of our most cherished artworks. Interwoven with the history of its making and the Rome of today, it's an exploration of the past in the present and the way a work of art can both terrify and alchemize the soul. An impassioned defence of the role of art in a fractured age, All Things Move is a quietly sublime meditation on how our lives can be changed by art, if only we learn to look.

On Writing and Failure Or, On the Peculiar Perseverance Required to Endure the Life of a Writer
by Stephen Marche

Less a guide to writing and more a guide to what you need to continue existing as a writer, On Writing and Failure describes the role played by rejection in literary endeavours and contemplates failure as the essence of the writer's life. Along with his own history of rejection, Marche offers stories from the history of writerly failure, from Ovid's exile to James Baldwin's advice just to endure, where living with the struggle and the pointlessness of writing is the point.

Crying Wolf
A Memoir
by Eden Boudreau

After a violent sexual assault, Eden Boudreau was faced with a choice: call the police and explain that a man who wasn't her husband, who she had agreed to go on a date with, had raped her. Or pray that it would be only a nightmare. Met with disbelief, often as a result of stigma towards her non-monogamy, sex positivity, and bisexuality, Eden felt silenced to a point of despair, leading to addiction and attempted suicide. It was through the act of writing that she began to heal.

Black Harbour
Slavery and the Forgotten Histories of Black People in Newfoundland and Labrador by Xavier Campbell and Heather Barrett

The history of Black people, along with slavery, within the British colony has been largely denied, obscured, and forgotten. Xavier Campbell and Heather Barrett reveal that a Black population was present in early Newfoundland and Labrador and that some of this history is rooted in the horrors of the transatlantic slave trade. Black Harbour is an illuminating and sometimes uncomfortable exploration of Newfoundland's colonial history—and what it means to those who live here today.

There Is No Blue

by Martha Baillie

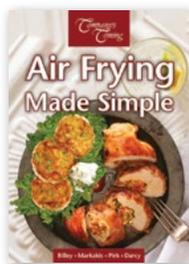

Three essays, three deaths. The first is Baillie's mother, leaving space for thoughtfulness and ritual: washing her body, making a death mask. Then, Baillie's father: his remoteness, his charm. And third, the author's sister, an artist living with schizophrenia, who writes three reasons to die on her bedroom wall and takes her life. Martha Baillie's richly layered memoir explores how the body, the rooms we inhabit, and our languages offer the psyche a home, if only for a time.

Are You Willing to Die for the Cause?
Revolution in 1960s Quebec

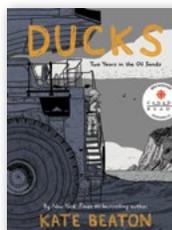

by Chris Oliveros

In 1963, a dozen mailboxes in a wealthy Montréal neighbourhood are blown to bits by handmade bombs. By 1966, two high-school students drop off bombs at factories, causing fatalities. What was behind these concerted, often bungled acts of terrorism? At times humorous, other times dramatic, but always informative, Are You Willing to Die for the Cause? shines a light on just how little it takes to organize dissent and who people trust to do it.

Against the Seas Saving Civilizations From Rising Waters

by Mary Soderstrom

Against the Seas tells how we have coped with rising sea levels since the end of the Ice Age—by moving, building defences, or magic. Flood stories in different cultures show just how traumatic those experiences were. But what happened in the past may help us in the future and gives hope that we will survive.

The Age of Insecurity Coming Together as Things Fall Apart

by Astra Taylor

A curious, critical, and hopeful look at the uniquely modern concept of insecurity. The Age of Insecurity exposes how seemingly disparate crises—our suffering mental health and rising inequality, the ecological emergency, and the threat of fascism—are tied to the fact that our social order runs on insecurity. Across disparate sectors, from policing and the military to the wellness and beauty industries, the systems that promise us security instead actively undermine it.

Concrete Women
Gender, Protest, and Urbanization in South Asia

by Tara Atluri

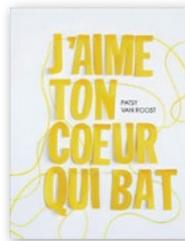

People who live in South Asian cities re-shape the politics and actualize constitutional rights, in parks, on playgrounds, and in city streets. This book discusses feminist, Transgender, and queer movements in urban India and Pakistan. The author shares stories from unabashedly courageous, intersectional feminists living and working in South Asia. Concrete Women is a rumination on the distances between life and death, between the finitude of violence and the possibility of justice.

J'aime ton coeur qui bat

by Patsy Van Roost

A little anti-depression book. When the pandemic was in full swing, artist Patsy Van Roost asked her neighbours to reveal something they loved, one thing per household. Once she'd received their responses, she sewed banners that she gave them for Valentine's Day. The J'aime project could be seen draped across balconies and shared on social media, bringing forth hundreds of hug-like words reminding us of life's little pleasures. This book is a collection of those enchanting finds.

Yogi Stripper

by Marie-Claude Renaud

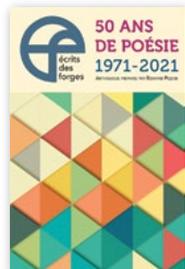

Marie-Claude Renaud looks back at her start in small town strip clubs, which led to success in the biggest clubs in Montréal, revealing hidden sides of this universe. She also tells of learning yoga from a toxic guru and expresses her solidarity with the women in both fields. Captivating and funny, Yogi Stripper invites us into a world that's nothing if not colourful.

Une auberge où personne ne s'arrête par Michel Pleau

Le poète confie au lecteur que par la langue, et plus précisément par les mots, il nous est possible de sculpter ses images les plus intimes, depuis sa naissance jusque devant la mort. Depuis l'enfance, les mots servent à marquer des lieux, des passages, à faire naître les gens et les événements de notre quotidien. Mais ils servent aussi à nommer leur disparition et les effets de leur absence. Le poète répond lui-même à ses interrogations en indiquant la voie à prendre.

Sur la plage de Zuma 9, on ne peut plus avancer. Cette plage incarne les limites d'une trajectoire entre terre et mer, joie et souffrance, croissance et disparition, mal et bien, amour et manque d'amour. J'arrive au bord de ce vaste océan avec à mon dos un continent scarifié par mes trajets et j'explore cette rupture qui est aussi transition, et je décris ce que je vois et ce que je sens.

Hearts

From the First Beat to the Last

by Alain Vadeboncoeur

The human heart has long been viewed as the seat of the emotions, love, and the soul, with the result that it long eluded our understanding. Skillfully alternating true stories, scientific discoveries, and clear explanations drawn from his experience of more than 20 years of looking after hearts, the author tells us the full story of the heart, from its first beat to its last spasm.

My Brother Is a Conspiracist
How to Re-establish Dialogue and Social Bonds

by David Morin and Marie-Ève Carignan

David Morin and Marie-Ève Carignan aim to re-examine this complex phenomenon without making judgments. This book is a tool to help us better understand the belief in conspiracy theories and reflect jointly on what it means for our societies. Lastly, while there is no magic recipe, it tries to offer individual and collective solutions for dealing with this phenomenon and for better preparing ourselves for the next crisis.

The Big Book of Synergology Decoding Body Language to Improve Relationships

by Philippe Turchet

This book explains the fundamentals of synergology and the changes in perspective that have occurred in the past ten years. The author discusses the main keys to observing body language and takes a close look at how easy it is to fall to stereotyping. He also tackles the issue of authentic space, so necessary for better understanding others, and covers the dynamic of lying in our conversations.

Je ferai le tour du monde par Alexandra Szacka

Derrière chaque reportage, il y a toujours un contexte, un supplément d'âme, une histoire qu'on n'a pas pu raconter, mais qui éclairent et ajoutent un fil invisible au canevas des vies qui y ont été à peine effleurées. C'est ce fil invisible qu'Alexandra Szacka fait dérouler ici pour nous en montrant l'envers du décor des grands reportages qui nous fascinent à la télévision.

Rien de beau sur la guerre

by Maï Nguyen and Patrick Froehlich

In 1975, ten-year-old Maï Nguyen fled Vietnam with her family. Fifty years later, Maï breaks the silence and goes back to her memories with the help of her brothers and sister with whom she had never discussed these painful events. This sensitive narrative, told with sweet nostalgia and tenderness, is a duty of memory about boat people. It is also a powerful testimony and a story of resilience that gives us a better understanding of what many people experience in today's wars.

La musique qui vient du froid Arts, chants et danses des Inuit par Jean-Jacques Nattiez

On trouvera dans cet ouvrage une anthropologie et une histoire de la culture musicale inuite en plus d'un panorama de ses manifestations. Son iconographie abondante met l'accent sur les représentations artistiques – sculptures, dessins, estampes – des danses à tambour et des chants de gorge. Enfin, ce livre se veut un hommage à l'immense talent artistique et à la virtuosité musicale de ce peuple qui vient du froid.

La sous-scolarisation des hommes et le choix de profession des femmes par Collectif

Au cours des 75 dernières années, dans un grand nombre de pays industrialisés, trois phénomènes remarquables se sont produits dans le monde de l'éducation. D'abord, la diplomation universitaire des femmes a rattrapé celle des hommes pour ensuite, contre toute attente, la dépasser. Enfin, malgré ce rattrapage et ce renversement de tendance, les différences dans les choix disciplinaires et de profession des femmes et des hommes se sont cristallisées.

Le devenir-femme des historiens de l'art par Michael Fried et Georges Didi-Huberman

Quelles relations l'histoire et la théorie de l'art entretiennent-elles avec le fantasme ? Et par quels mécanismes – tant psychanalytiques que philosophiques, historiques, sociaux ou politiques – s'articulent-elles au sein des discours sur l'art ? L'outrice, qui s'appuie sur les travaux de la philosophe française Sarah Kofman, aborde cette question en examinant les œuvres de deux historiens-théoriciens de l'art considérés aujourd'hui comme des figures intellectuelles incontournables.

Godzilla a donné naissance à l'une des franchises les plus lucratives et les plus longues de l'histoire du cinéma et son statut a considérablement évolué au cours des années. Comment prétendre lutter contre le racisme qui vise les musulmans et contre la peur qu'engendre l'islam en faisant fi de ce qu'est le courant islamiste ? Les auteurs souhaitent contribuer ainsi à un dialogue fondé sur la prise en compte de réalités difficiles à analyser, plutôt que sur leur déni, et offrent un contrepoids aux discours en vogue, ceux des islamistes comme ceux des individus qui en sous-estiment l'importance.

Doing Harm
How the World's Largest Psychological Association Lost Its Way in the War on Terror
 by Roy J. Eidelson

Doing Harm prides opens the black box on a critical chapter in the recent history of psychology: the field's enmeshment in the so-called war on terror and the ensuing reckoning over ethics during times of threat. Focusing on developments within the American Psychological Association, the book recounts an ongoing struggle that has pitted leaders set on preserving ties to the military-intelligence establishment against dissident voices committed to prioritizing do-no-harm principles.

In a world of increasing right-wing populism, global capitalism, and a climate emergency, leading thinkers come together to interrogate the meaning and practice of being outspoken. The violence, persecution, and social hostilities of the 21st century demand a call to order: philosophical and theoretical communities must commit their intellectual resources to confronting and articulating the structures, desires, and resentment driving the dismantling of democratic values.

Prophets of Love
The Unlikely Kinship of Leonard Cohen and the Apostle Paul by Matthew R. Anderson

Leonard Cohen and the Apostle Paul might be imagined as brothers with different characters but a strong family resemblance: Paul, the awkward and zealous elder sibling, and Leonard, the successful younger brother. Paul died a martyr while Leonard could see his canonization within his lifetime. Yet each became a poet for the ages. Prophets of Love alters our views of both Leonard Cohen and the Apostle Paul, re-introducing us to two poetic prophets of divine and human love.

Echo Loba, Loba Echo
 Of Wisdom, Wolves, and Women

by Sonja Swift

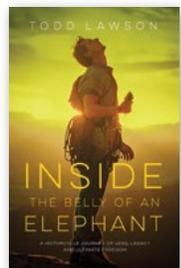

Echo Loba, Loba Echo is a story about the global metaphor of the wolf and how this is echoed in the lives and minds of people. It is a story about wolves' own cultures, survival stories, acts of rebellion, and vital roles in maintaining healthy territories. Through essay and poetry, the metaphor of the wolf, and loba—for she-wolf—is examined. Wolf as scapegoat, villain, and outcast. Wolf as warrior, guide, and mother.

Inside the Belly of an Elephant A Motorcycle Journey of Loss, Legacy and Ultimate Freedom

by Todd Lawson

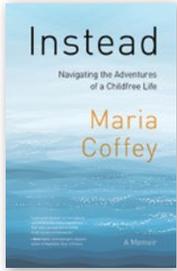

In 1999, Todd Lawson's brother, Sean, died tragically of preventable cerebral malaria at the end of a motorcycle adventure through southern Africa. Bitterly poignant, Inside the Belly of an Elephant takes readers on a full-throttle adventure of spontaneity that wheels from harrowing tragedy to uplifting narratives that illuminate the power we all possess to rise up from the dark depths of the human condition.

An Anthology of Monsters How Story Saves Us from Our Anxiety
 by Cherie Dimaline

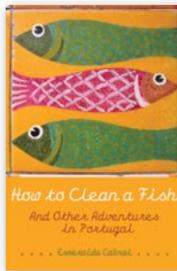

An Anthology of Monsters by Cherie Dimaline, award-winning author of The Marrow Thieves, is the tale of an intricate dance with life-long anxiety. It is about how the stories we tell ourselves can help reshape the ways in which we think, cope, and ultimately survive. Dimaline choreographs a deeply personal narrative about all the ways in which we tell stories. She reveals how to collect and curate our stories and how family and community is a place of refuge and strength.

How to Clean a Fish And Other Adventures in Portugal
 by Esmeralda Cabral

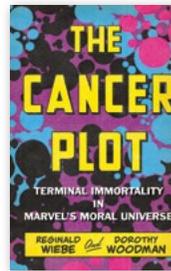

How to Clean a Fish describes a family stay in Portugal, full of food, adventure, and the search for home. Offered the chance to live in Costa da Caparica for an extended period of time, Cabral returned to the country of her birth with her Canadian-born husband, children, and Portuguese Water Dog. The book is packed with local cuisine and customs, tales of language barriers and bureaucracy, and threaded with that irresistible need to connect with the culture of our birth.

The Cancer Plot
Terminal Immortality in Marvel's Moral Universe by Reginald Wiebe and Dorothy Woodman

The Cancer Plot engages literature in comic studies, the medical humanities, and graphic medicine to examine representations of cancer in Marvel comics. Cancer, the authors argue, functions as a device that destabilizes moral binaries and symbolizes that which cannot be overcome. Further, the authors draw from gender theory, disability studies, and cultural theory to demonstrate how cancer in comics enables an examination of moral attributes such as power and responsibility.

Letters with Smokie Blindness and More-than-Human Relations

by Rod Michalko and Dan Goodley

In September 2020, Rod Michalko wrote to friend and colleague Dan Goodley congratulating him on the release of his latest book. Joking that his late guide dog, Smokie, had taken offence to the suggestion that disability was purely a human question, Michalko shared a few thoughts on behalf of his dog. When Goodley wrote back—to Smokie—so began an epistolic exchange that would continue for the next seven months.

The Life and Times of Augustine Tataneuck An Inuk Hero in Rupert's Land, 1800–1834

by Renee Fossett

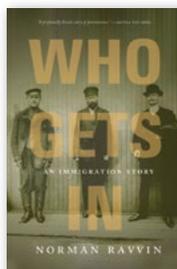

Augustine Tataneuck was an Inuk man born near the beginning of the 19th century. Between 1812 and 1834, he was perhaps the first Inuk man employed by the Hudson's Bay Company, and he also was an interpreter on John Franklin's two overland expeditions in search of the northwest passage. This book is an arresting, unique glimpse into the North as it was in the 19th century and into the lives of trappers, translators, and labourers who are often absent in the historical record.

Who Gets In An Immigration Story

by Norman Ravvin

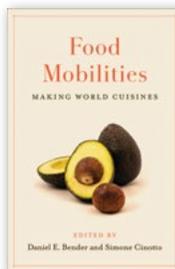

In 1930, a young Jewish man, Yehuda Yosef Eisenstein, arrived in Canada from Poland in the hopes of starting a new life for himself and his family. Like countless others, Eisenstein was only granted entry because he claimed to be single. He trusted that his family would be able to follow after he had gained legal entry. Who Gets In is Norman Ravvin's family memoir, telling the story of his grandfather's struggle against anti-Semitic government policies.

Food Mobilities
Making World Cuisines

by Daniel E. Bender and Simone Cinotto

Food moves. Today, shoppers can load their shopping basket with spices from India, fruit from Honduras, and canned goods from Italy. Diners can choose among the cuisines of the world. Food Mobilities explores the symbolic connection between mobility and the practical systems of food politics, production, transformation, exchange, and consumption. Each essay explores a fascinating case study, from Italian foods in colonial Ethiopia to traditional Cornish pasties in modern Mexico.

It's All about the Land Collected Talks and Interviews on Indigenous Resurgence

by Taiaiake Alfred

In It's All about the Land, renowned Kahnawà:ke Mohawk activist and scholar Taiaiake Alfred explains how the Canadian government's reconciliation agenda is a new form of colonization and shows that Indigenous peoples around the world face a stark choice: reconnect with their authentic cultures or continue down a slow road to annihilation. Alfred proposes instead Indigenous Resurgence, an authentic politics that roots resistance in the spirit, knowledge, and laws of the ancestors.

Skating on Thin Ice Professional Hockey, Rape Culture, and Violence against Women

by Walter S. DeKeseredy, Stu Cowan, and Martin D. Schwartz

Skating on Thin Ice reveals that young men enter the NHL and other revenue-generating hockey leagues already trained and primed to treat women as objects, and often to commit violent acts against them. It examines the abusive, misogynistic, racist, and homophobic behaviours found in professional hockey and the larger societal forces that perpetuate and legitimate these harms, while also providing collaborative solutions for fixing the problem of rape culture in hockey and beyond.

Clément Ader, l'homme qui voulait voler

par Katia Canciani et Félix Girard

9 octobre 1890. Une date mémorable puisqu'elle marque le début de l'aviation, grâce à l'inventivité, la curiosité et la perspicacité d'un homme d'exception, Clément Ader. Ce jour-là une machine plus lourde que l'air s'est envolée sur une distance de 50 mètres. Incroyable ! Clément Ader a créé un engin dont les ailes ressemblaient à celles d'une créature ailée muni d'un moteur à hélices. Clément Ader, un homme inspirant et un modèle de persévérance pour les jeunes.

Pollution plastique par Andrée Poulin et Jean Morin

Le plastique, on le retrouve partout. Partout ! PARTOUT ! Autant, le plastique est merveilleux, autant il est une menace pour la planète et nos océans, ainsi que pour toutes les créatures qui y vivent. Pollution plastique est un documentaire complet, fouillé et des plus pertinents qui fait réfléchir sur notre dépendance au plastique et sur son impact environnemental. Il donne aussi des pistes pour réduire notre consommation et développer des comportements responsables.

Mon premier livre de yoga
My First Yoga Book

by Sophie Martel and Marie-Hélène Tapin, illustrated by Isabelle Charbonneau

A fun, lively book of 40 yoga poses: children can pose like a cat, a cobra, a frog, and more.

L'enfant s'amusera à reproduire la position de la grenouille, du guépard, du koala, du chameau. Illustré avec précision et rempli d'humour, le livre propose aux enfants d'intégrer le yoga dans leur routine quotidienne. De plus, on y trouve deux « histoires pour se détendre », à lire à voix haute par un adulte, pour aider l'enfant à se relaxer et à s'endormir.

Papi Noël et le cœur de la forêt par Nicole Testa, illustré par Loren Bes

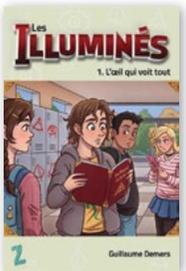

Noël habite seul dans une maison à l'Orée du bois. Il a des cheveux gris, des lunettes, une barbe, de grandes oreilles comme un papi. Mais il lui manque le plus important : un p'tit enfant. Le P'tit enfant vit dans le Cœur de la Forêt. Il a plein de jeux dans sa tête, mais personne avec qui jouer. Papi Noël connaît toutes sortes d'histoires, mais il n'a personne à qui les raconter. Un matin, décidé à trouver le P'tit enfant, Noël part à l'aventure dans la forêt enneigée...

La plus haute branche by Hélène deBlois, illustrated by Émilie Leduc

From the highest branch of her monstrous tree—a giant twice the size of a diplodocus—Elsa likes to imagine a time when Earth was an empty, cold desert and the moon, alone in the sky, was lonely. Her tree was there when sabre-toothed tigers and mammoths in woollen coats ruled the land. Today, Elsa wants to build a raft to spend the night in her tree. But her father forbids her to go back up. Why? she asks him. The answer goes through her heart like a dagger...

Les Galettes de grand-maman

by Emilie Plank

Lena adores her grandmother's biscuits; the taste reminds her of the country she sadly had to leave behind. New house, new school: Lena has to learn to defend her origins and her identity against prejudice and a lack of understanding. This reading addresses profound themes (emigration, war, leaving one's family) with calm, carefully chosen words.

Emilie Plank specializes in teaching non-violent communication, conflict resolution strategies, and social-emotional learning.

racism, resistance, and reclaiming Black freedom by Khodi Dill, illustrated by Stylo Starr

An incisive, innovative, and inviting take on fighting oppression and fighting for racial justice. With a compelling mix of memoir, cultural criticism, and anti-oppressive theory, Dill breaks down how white supremacy functions in North America and gives readers tools to understand how racism impacts their lives. From dismantling internalized racism, decolonizing schools, joining social justice movements, and more, Dill lays out paths to personal liberation and social transformation.

La chambre éteinte

par Jonathan Bécotte

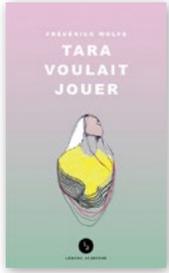

Un matin d'automne, le narrateur reçoit un appel de son père : celui-ci veut transformer son ancienne chambre d'enfant en établi. Le jeune homme prend alors la route vers sa ville natale, où l'attend la difficile tâche de déterminer ce qui, dans les boîtes de souvenirs accumulés, mérite d'être rescapé. Tandis qu'il retrouve les objets familiers à l'éclat terni par le temps, lui reviennent avec vivacité des moments partagés avec un premier amour, depuis longtemps perdu.

La composante Traduction du programme Rayonner à l'international subventionne la traduction d'œuvres littéraires d'écrivaines et d'écrivains canadiens pour leur publication internationale. Le financement couvre 50 % des frais de traduction, jusqu'à 20 000 $ CA, et des coûts liés à la promotion du livre traduit.
